A High Toned Absconder.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 29.—A decided sensation was produced here to-night on discovering that a prominent young lawyer, Gottlieb Engel, of this city, has absconded and the probabilities are he is an embezzler and forger to a large amount. Engel was connected by marriage with the best Jewish families here and at Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati. A warrant for his arrest on the charge of forgery is just issued. Peculations to the amount of $10,000 are traced but the forgery is believed to be several times that amount. He is alleged to have swindled clients out of estates sold and property not his own, and has raised forged and appropriated funds of Jewish societies of which he was treasurer. He was for a long time probate court clerk. It is believed his crimes extend over a period of years and must represent money value of many thousands of dollars. No young man was more trusted in wealthy Jewish circles.

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., Dec. 29.—Rev. H. O. Hoffman, pastor of the First M. E. Church in this city, one of the most promising and brilliant ministers in the state, is charged by a former female domestic with being the father of her illegitimate child. Too Mormon Question in Congress.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The Tribune's Washington special says: A warm debate on the Mormon question is expected in the house at an early day, which the Campbell-Cannon contest comes before that body for action. It is thought probable that neither Cannon or Campbell will be admitted and, as a fact will be made to deprive Utah of representation so long as polygamy is practiced and protected in that territory. A further evidence that a majority of the house is ripe for severe measures against the Mormon hierarchy is found in the general favor with which is received the bill of Willets to abolish the territorial legislature of Utah and substitute therefor a legislative council of nine members, to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. It is understood that a majority of the committee of judiciary have already expressed themselves in favor of that or some measure like it, and the probabilities are that it will be favorably reported to the house early in the session. There is also every probability that a measure will be passed so changing the laws relating to evidence in the Utah courts as to make it practicable to obtain conviction for violation of the statutes against polygamy. There is a strong disposition also to disfranchise and disqualify for holding office all persons sustaining polygamous relations.

A Fearful Conglomeration.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The Tribune's Washington correspondent interviewed Congressman Whitthorne on the Inter-oceanic canal, and the latter said in effect, that the history of the world records that two spots on the earth's surface, Gibraltar and the Dardanelles, have always been considered the prizes of war. Why should the United States encourage other conflicts of the same sort by digging an ocean canal to draw the fleets and navies of Europe to our shores, and to impose upon us the necessity of maintaining in both oceans a vast naval armaments to protect our Pacific trade, as well as the immense commerce of the Mississippi and its tributaries, which seeks an outlet through the gulf of Mexico. It would be folly enough for the United States with the vast grasp we already have upon the eastern trade ourselves, to furnish or to allow any body else to furnish if we could prevent it, a shorter cut for the whole trade between Asia and Europe, an advantage which our European competitors and rivals would seize on the first instant and use to give a finishing blow to American commerce. Again there is a political reason why we cannot allow our neighbor, Colombia, to do a thing which we as a nation do continually, to permit and encourage indefinitely large amounts of foreign capital to seek investment there. We know perfectly well that no matter how many hundred million dollars of English or other foreign capital is invested in this country in railroad, canal or other enterprise it is absolutely free from foreign political control. With Colombia the case is different. Say for example that American capitalists should undertake to invest a hundred million dollars in the Panama canal and should send 10,000 men from the United States to build it. How long do you think it would be before American capital and American brains would gain political control of Colombia?

The Utah Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The Star says: The general sentiment of members of the house committee on elections in regard to the Cannon-Campbell case from Utah is that neither of them is entitled to a seat in the house. The committee will first inquire into the subject of whether Cannon is or is not an alien. The next question will, however, be in all probability that the whole matter be referred back to the people of Utah for new elections.

Political Changes in Prospect.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The Advertiser's Washington special says the best informed politicians here no longer entertain any doubt as to the appointment of Sargent to the interior department. A gentleman who enjoys the president's confidence says he knows the matter is practically settled and that Sargent will succeed Secretary Kirkwood next month. Chaffee is considered off the list for a cabinet position. Southern republicans are making a strong fight for the navy department, and they do not credit the report that this place is to be given to New England and that Wm. E. Chandler has been selected for it. Face has not suspended his efforts to get Directors of the Mint, Burchard ousted, and he has enlisted the support of other congressmen in the fight. Those opposed to Burchard profess to believe that a change will be made before many months have passed, and that one will be appointed who is more in sympathy with the east on the silver question.

Will Canvass for a New Office.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—A special from Washington says: It is reported that Representative Geo. W. Jones, of Texas has determined within a few days to make a canvass in Texas as independent candidate for governor. Jones has had the subject under consideration for some time, but it is only since he has been here in attendance at congress that he has finally made up his mind.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The secretary of the interior has declined to re-open the Valent pre-emption cases, which affects title of lands in and near Chicago.

Star Route Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Bliss transmitted to Attorney-General Brewster correspondence between himself and Postmaster-General James in reference to commencement of civil suits against the star route ring and received the following:

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.

My Dear Sir:—Have received your letter together with correspondence between yourself and Postmaster-General James. I read it all with satisfaction and approve of that which you have written. As soon as I enter on the duties of my department, which will be in a few days, I propose to give you special authority to pursue these suggested civil suits with all prompt attitude orderly litigation will permit. And the uttermost penny unlawfully received and taken from the public treasury must be recovered. Hitherto you have given diligent attention to criminal proceedings and before I came into the cases had acquired a considerable knowledge of the subject. These prosecutions must be earnestly pressed, trials must be prompt and cases must be well prepared. On you, together with other counsel who have been before this investigating them cases, I must rely for their preparation. All that is essential must be ready for use. I have resolved that my duty will require me to give an active part in the trials in court, and I hope to be present with you and in person lead in prosecution for the United States. I am etc., respectfully yours,

BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER.

To Col. Geo. Bliss, New York City.

A Bill to Regulate Railroads.

Representative Henderson, of Illinois, who recently introduced in the house a bill to regulate interstate commerce, says he intends to devote considerable energy to the passage of either his bill or some other that will control and regulate railroad tariff. A law of this kind is necessary to protect the business of railroads as well as other classes of people, as it is now shaped a few speculators and stock brokers can band together and wreck almost any road they direct their efforts against by depreciating its property, and thus are rapidly getting control of all railroads. He is inclined to favor a bill fixing minimum rates of charge so that each shipper may calculate privately what his transportation will cost him.

Washington Notes.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—The Evening Journal's Washington special says: The president, vice-president, secretary of the treasury, postmaster general and new judges of the supreme court are all widowers. Indications are that if ex-Senator Sargent of California is nominated for the cabinet there will be a decided opposition to his confirmation, on the grounds that the stalwarts are getting too much.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

Corkhill thinks Guiteau Should be Further Away.

SCOVILLE WILLING TO PUT HIM IN THE CELLAR, IF DESIRED.

Guiteau Abuses Scoville and the Latter Shows Symptoms of Disgust A New Expert for Defense Heard of by Reed.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The court was densely packed despite the rainy weather. A rumor is current this morning that the jury, with one exception, are satisfied of the guilt and legal responsibility of the prisoner. The twelfth juror, it is said, stoutly maintains that Guiteau is as crazy as a March hare. The prisoner was taken without demonstration to the prisoners' dock. This is located about 25 feet from counsel upon the left of the room. A narrow passage separates it from a large window, which overlooks Louisiana avenue. Guiteau, glanced around the room and then out of the window, and evinced some nervousness at his apparently exposed position. He started in to make his usual morning speech.

"I noticed," he said, "as I rode up in the van this morning that the usual guard of police had been withdrawn. Now, I want to say emphatically that if I was turned out to-morrow I would take care of myself, but so long as I am in custody this court is bound to protect me. There is more danger in my being shot when riding to and from the jail in the van than any other time, and I want your honor to make an order that the usual guard shall accompany me. The cranks are not all dead yet, though they are fast dying off. As a matter of fact, it would require but one crank with sufficient nerve to shoot me in the van. That's where the most danger lies. I'm making more friends every day and getting lots of sympathy. I don't anticipate any danger except from cranks.

Dr. Callender was called. Before any question was put Judge Cox remarked: "As the statement was made yesterday that the court surrounded the prisoner with unusual guards and protection, I will state that the prisoner is in custody of the marshal and not of the court, and whatever extra guards have been furnished have been supplied by him."

Guiteau—Well, then, your honor, if the marshal won't do his duty I appeal to the court. If the marshal won't furnish a proper guard kick him out and let's have a new marshal.

Scoville desired to exhibit to witness as an expert a letter written by Guiteau some ten days since to Senator Don Cameron.

Scoville then asked witness: "Will you give your opinion whether such a letter as that, written to a man he did not know, does not indicate unsoundness of mind?"

"I don't think it indicates unsoundness of mind. It seems to me consistent with his character and habit through life of soliciting money from sources where he had no reason to expect it."

Guiteau—I don't think so either. It only shows what a jackass you are, Scoville.

Col. Corkhill—Your honor, if these interruptions on the part of the prisoner are to continue I must request that the dock be placed in another part of the room.

Scoville (impotently)—You can place it in the cellar if you want. We won't object.

Corkhill—You can't object.

Scoville—We don't desire to object. All we ask you will be to make your motion if you have one to make and not harangue the jury as you did yesterday.

Scoville then read witness the hypothetical question of defense as if witness replied, "Upon that hypothesis the prisoner is a self-evident proposition."

Guiteau interrupted from his place in the dock and shouted in harsh and strained tones, "Hold on. I want to say something about that letter. I protest against its being read in evidence. It is a private letter I wrote Senator Cameron 10 days ago, asking him for a loan of $500. It was entirely a private matter. I entrusted it to my brother to give Senator Cameron, and he withheld it in a miserable, mean manner and gave it to this man Scoville. My brother had better go back to Boston and try to make some money to pay his debts. He has been a perfect nuisance on this case ever since he has been here. He and Scoville have arranged themselves into this case to make notoriety at my expense. I repudiate both of them. Scoville, you had better go back to Chicago. You are a perfect jackass on this case and I won't have you to it any longer."

Davidge objected to the letter but the court overruled the objection and Scoville then read:

Hon. Don Cameron—Dear Sir:—I am on trial for my life. I need money. I am a stalwart of the stalwarts and am going to be acquitted. I think a great deal of Gen. Arthur and so do I. My inspiration made him president and I am going to ask you to let me have $500. If I get out of this I will return it. If not, charge it to the stalwarts. Yours for your cause and very cordially, CHARLES GUITEAU.

In court, Washington, D. C., Dec. 19, 1881.

P. S.—Please give your check to my brother, J. W. Guiteau, of Boston, and make it payable to my order.

Prisoner continued, "I don't care a snap about it one way or the other. If you had presented it you would probably have got the money, but as you concealed it in a mean, sneaking way, you didn't get the money. It is a very good letter anyway, but I don't like this way of stopping and stealing my private letters and dragging them into court.

Dr. Walter Kempster, superintendent of the Wisconsin asylum for the insane, had devoted his attention to the study of insanity for fifteen years. Witness was familiar with the process of taking the conformity of heads and did not believe much importance in rules could be attached to the shape of a head in determining the question, sanity or insanity. Witness exhibited a number of slips showing the shape as taken by the conformeter of heads of a number of gentlemen, including Treasurer Gilfillan, Judge Cartwell, Judge Carter, W. J. Sibley and Col. Corkhill. In the case of Col. Ingersoll witness remarked, pointing with his finger, "this side appears flat as compared with the other side."

Guiteau—That shows Bob and I are both cracked in the same direction."

"Col. Corkhill's head," said the witness, "has a very marked depression upon one side."

Guiteau—Well, you couldn't put your foot in the depression in his head."

Witness continuing, "The depression is very similar to that noticed in prisoner's head." [Laughter.]

Guiteau—"Oh, he is cracked a great deal worse than I am."

Witness related incidents within his knowledge of persons, while acting under the influence of insane delusions, and defined what he considered insane delusions to be.

Witness was asked if he had ever seen a case where a person committed a crime and claimed divine inspiration, and if so how such persons deported themselves before and after the act?

He replied that in such cases the delusion, or inspiration, as they claim it to be, comes to persons suddenly and with intense pressure, and that such persons act quickly, and when the sudden impulse is on them, delaying neither to consider opportunity nor weapons; that it would be impossible to conceive without actually witnessing it, the energy and impetuosity and determination with which persons acting under insane delusions carry out their purposes, and that it would be equally impossible to describe it with language.

Guiteau—"You don't agree with Abraham, doctor. He took plenty of time to make his arrangements."

Witness stated he did not believe in a distinct life of insanity, which could be called moral insanity. It was simply a convenient term which had been invented to excuse the commission of heinous crimes. Witness had never seen a case where an insane man after committing a crime paraded his insanity, and urged it as an excuse for his crime. Insane murderers do not boast of their acts, but on the contrary very rarely allude to them, unless a good deal of ingenuity is used to draw them out. Witness, until he entered this court room, had never heard of a case of alleged inspiration that came from within. Always such persons claim to have heard the voice of God, or seen his image, or something of that sort. Such inspiration is never a conviction arrived at on mature reflection on the part of the person so afflicted.

Witness was asked if the belief of prisoner's father, I. N. Guiteau, that disease could be cured by prayer, should be taken as evidence of insanity?

He replied—"By no means. We all know there are thousands and thousands of sane people who regard daily for the salvation of President Garfield's life. They would hardly have done so if they had not entertained a belief in the efficacy of prayers.

Guiteau—"It shows that the Lord and people don't agree on this business. The people are beginning to come over to my side and the Lord's though."

Corkhill then read the hypothetical questions of prosecution and witness replied to each, "taking the facts set forth to be true, in my opinion, he was sane." Recess.

After recess Guiteau opened proceedings with a request for pen and ink. "If your honor please," he remarked, "I have a good many letters here that require to be answered. If I could have paper, pen and ink, I could put in a great deal of time to advantage."

The throng that besieged the doors of the court room this afternoon was greater than upon any previous occasion. Another expert for defense has been discovered through the following telegram, which Col. Reed received this morning:

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Dec. 29.

Chas. Reed, Washington, D. C.: Dr. McFarland has treated members of Guiteau's family. He is a thorough expert and believes prisoner insane. You remember him in Hopp's case. Subpœna him here.

Dr. Kempster again took the stand. He had visited the jail and examined the prisoner with a view to determining his mental condition. Witness detailed at some length conversations he had with the prisoner, with occasional contradictions by Guiteau. Witness asked prisoner if he thought he was insane, and his reply was, "not what you experts call insane, but legally insane." Which asked what he meant by that term prisoner said if he could get the jury to believe he was acting under inspiration from the Lord when he shot the president that would be all he wanted. They would acquit him.

Col. Corkhill—Doctor, there was a young man here a moment ago, who—

Col. Reed (jumping to his feet)—I submit, your honor, that such language is entirely improper.

Judge Cox remarked, and Col. Corkhill stopped in confusion, as he added, "Well, then, the doctor is a humbug."

Judge Cox—The form of the question is not admissible.

Col. Corkhill—I did not intend it as a reflection, but merely to distinguish the witness in question from those medical gentlemen who have testified here and have knowledge of what they testify.

Scoville—You meant it as a reflection, and spoke in that way because the gentleman is not here to answer you.

Col. Corkhill—I said the same to him when he was here.

Scoville—Yes; and you were well answered, too. [General laughter.]

Judge Porter then, in the preface to the question manifestly improper, a mistake, however, Porter might have made had he been in the place of his colleague.

Guiteau had been engaged with his mail for some minutes, and he re-called out, "I would like to have you know, ladies and gentlemen, that my letters now come addressed 'Hon. Charles Guiteau.' Quite a change from last summer."

Witness was cross-examined by Col. Reed, who produced a pamphlet report prepared by witness as superintendent of Wisconsin Insane Asylum, and read extracts from it. During the reading a dispute arose between counsel, who seemed to have gradually developed a vast amount of bitterness.

Judge Porter several times insinuated that Col. Reed was wisely reading for the purpose of deceiving the jury, and upon the latter's indignant denial and demand that the reporter's notes be read in his vindication, asserted that counsel could defend himself if he desired to put himself on trial in place of the prisoner.

Col. Reed with an effort kept his temper despite the badgering of opposing counsel and insisted upon the reading of the notes. The reporter read them and his notes compared with the exception of two words, which were quoted in the report and which counsel had not mentioned. Some fifteen minutes had been consumed in the dispute and the court remarked:

"Counsel, the trial must proceed without so much time discussing immaterial differences."

Guiteau shouted from the dock, "I want it understood Judge Porter is making all this fuss and interruption simply to divert the minds of the jury from the point which he sees Reed has made against him. It surely shows the contemptible meanness that only such fellows as he and Corkhill can indulge in."

Cross-examination was continued by Scoville with occasional outbursts on the part of prisoner, until adjournment. "He came here," said Guiteau, "as an expert for the defense. That's what he said when he was in my cell, but good living at Willard's and Corkhill's money has been too much for him."

Adjourned till to-morrow.

Judge Porter's Speech.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—In the Guiteau trial yesterday Judge Porter made a very impressive speech on the motion to remove the prisoner to the dock. He said:

"The assassin of the president will assassinate no more forever, and the voice which is not silenced now will be dumb as that of the victim when the end of the law is reached. [Applause.] The man, sane or insane, is permitted to lay the arm of the law in his footsteps, as observed. I have approved —and I say it in view of the condemnation of the American people as represented by their papers, because they did not understand the situation as we did—I have approved and vindicated your honor's course down to this time.

This prisoner, with the acquiescence of his counsel, said he had been sane from the hour after he executed the fatal, diabolical and infamous murder.

When I made this motion I felt that the time had come when it was due to the majesty of the law, to the vindication of the American government, and above all to the vindication of the judiciary, that the step should be taken which I now indicate.

You suspended your decision in the hope you might be able to extend to this sane criminal and homicide still further clemency, but if it be extended it will be at some peril, peril to the name of American jurisprudence; peril in respect of the indefinite continuation of a trial which without interposition from the prisoner would have terminated three weeks ago. The time now comes when the law must make its appearance in this court. The man who pretends to be a maniac as well as lunger sit at the counsel table and exercise a privilege which you would accord to no member of the American bar.

Scoville Corrects a Misstatement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Scoville sent the following communication to the Post to-night:

My attention has been called to published interview with Marshal Henry, and I desire to correct what I believe to be false impression in the public mind. From the statement of the marshal as published, he says Mrs. Scoville got $300 for her witness fee, and put it down in her pocket, or words to that effect. The fact was that I paid $100 and Mrs. Scoville put it into her pocket, the balance being used to pay our board bill. The marshal has the figures in his office, his deputy having paid the money. It is hardly just that he should make such a statement. It becomes material whether "two" is placed at the right or left of the other figures when counting money, and we do not like to be prejudiced by any such mistake in that respect. The marshal also seemed to complain that the laws of this district allows the defendant's witnesses to be paid by the government. The same law that allows the marshal his compensation out of the public treasury allows the payment of these witnesses' fees, and he has no more right to complain of it than I have to complain of his drawing his pay from the public treasury. I think witnesses for the prosecution will cost the government three times as much as those for defense.

GEO. W. SCOVILLE.

The Final Addresses in Guiteau's Case.

District Attorney Corkhill says Davidge will make the opening speech for the government in the Guiteau case. Then Scoville will follow. I don't know whether Reed will speak or not. Judge Porter will then close the case. I do not expect to speak unless the question of jurisdiction is raised, on which I am prepared to say something. That was thought to be a great question at first, but it seems to be lost sight of now.

ARIZONA.

A Reign of Terror in Tombstone.

TOMBSTONE, Dec. 29.—The condition of United States deputy marshal Earp is critical. Surgeons this afternoon took out the fractured bone in the arm above the elbow. A shot penetrated the body above the left hip, passed through the body and lodged near the point of the hip bone, above the groin. The doctor says four chances in five he will die. The civil authorities are doing nothing to capture the murderers, so far as known. A report has been sent United States marshal Dake, at Prescott, of the state of affairs here. Judges Spicer, Marshal Williams, Wyatt Earp, Rickabaugh and others are momentarily in danger of assassination.

A Murderous Family.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 29.—The Commercial's Dore, Ohio, special says: Moreen Richards has confessed the murder of Mrs. Terpitt, his master's sister, and says it was done on account of an old grudge. The murdered woman's son William is undergoing a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary for the murder of three persons four years ago. Mr. Terpitt died of grief for his son's crime two years ago. There is a theory the Richards shot his aunt to prevent her revealing what she knew about others implicated in her son's crime. Richards is a young man, and has taken unusual interest in the Guiteau trial, particularly to what Guiteau says. Four days ago he bought a revolver, remarking that it was the same kind that Guiteau used. From this it is supposed that he did the murder for notoriety. There is still talk of lynching him.

New Railroad Line.

TROY, Dec. 29.—Engineers are surveying a route for a railroad from Danby, Vt., to a point opposite Ticonderoga on Lake Champlain, which will be bridged, so from Ticonderoga run to Sackett's Harbor, which with western and eastern connections will make the distance between Chicago and Boston 150 miles less than by any existing road.

From Joy to Grief.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 29.—A sister of Miss Cushman who was murdered by the suicide Moore, says their conversation just before the tragedy was cheerful. They frequently laughed and showed no signs of quarreling.

John R. McLean has purchased the interest of Ben Jaynes, Parsons in the Enquirer of Cincinnati, and becomes sole proprietor. But neither party will divulge the purchase price.

A good purgative medicine is one of the absolute necessities of the age. This want has been supplied by Dr. J. C. They are mild but certain in their effects, and keep the system in good condition.

Suicide of a Preacher.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—Rev. Charles Wesley Hewes, pastor of the Fifth U. P. church at the Mission, committed suicide to-day at the residence of his sister in Oakland by cutting his throat with a knife. He had been acting strangely for some time, and his family feared he was becoming mentally deranged. Although comely was not he managed to escape notice for a short time when he committed the fatal act. Deceased was 64 years old and a native of Massachusetts. He was pastor at one time of the Baptist church at Healdsburg, also at St. Helena. Subsequently he was instructor at Mills' seminary and Wadsworth school. He succeeded Rev. T. M. Kelloch as pastor at the Mission. He leaves a widow and two grown sons.

Citizens of Oakland are uneasy about a number of cases of smallpox in the city, and some fears are entertained of an epidemic. General purification of the city is talked of.

Unknown Murder.

LINCOLN, Cal., Dec. 28.—A woodchopper named Henry M. Smith was found dead in his bed in a cabin near this place yesterday. Evidence disclosed that the deceased had been murdered and put in his bed afterwards by some party as yet unknown.

Shot by Cowboys.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—A Tombstone dispatch says Deputy U. S. Marshal Earp was fired upon while crossing Fifth street last night by three men armed with shotguns. The assassins were concealed in an unfinished building and escaped in the darkness. Nineteen buckshot struck Earp, inflicting dangerous, perhaps mortal wounds. The assault is undoubtedly the outgrowth of the recent fight with the cowboys, in which Earp was engaged. The gang has since threatened the lives of Earp and his supporters. The citizens are greatly excited.

Aid Wanted for Alaskan Surveys.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—This afternoon a special meeting of the chamber of commerce was held for the purpose of considering a communication addressed to that body by Prof. George Davidson, relative to surveys on the Alaska coast. The communication stated that the writ was of the U.S. coast and geodetic survey, that he had been requested by the government to obtain the support of the chamber of commerce for an appropriation by congress to continue surveys in Alaska. The writer stated that in his opinion the survey would be of the greatest advantage to the commerce of the Pacific coast. By invitation, Prof. Davidson addressed the chamber of commerce at some length, giving the result of his observations and experience during several visits to Alaska. The following resolution, addressed to congress, was unanimously adopted;

The chamber of commerce of San Francisco respectfully represent to your honorable bodies that the varied resources of Alaska, which should form an important factor in the commerce of the Pacific coast, are at present unavailable owing to want of accurate information on navigable, the sea gable water and topography of the country; that partial surveys heretofore made at intervals by the United States coast and geodetic survey have been so limited as to result in far less benefit to trade than is desired by our merchants and mariners. This chamber, therefore, earnestly requests your honorable bodies to appropriate at once sufficient funds for continuance of the U. S. coast and geodetic surveys within the territory of Alaska.

Our Coast Harbor Defences.

At a special meeting of the chamber of commerce to-day a letter was read from Senator Miller, in reply to a communication sent him by the chamber relative to the defenses of the harbor of San Francisco. A portion of the city is virtually destroyed.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The police have arrested a man named Connell in County Cork, charged with having arms in a proclaimed district. A number of loaded revolvers were found in his possession. It is believed he is leader of a gang who have been committing outrages in Mill street the past year. Among the documents found in his possession was one containing a list of persons upon whom outrages were to be committed. The police have found a large quantity of rifles, bayonets and cartridges in the vault of the Protestant church in Kilkishan, county Clare.

TWO METHODS OF RESTRICTION.

In a careful summary of liquor legislation in Kansas and Nebraska, prepared with a view to presenting a contrast of methods and comparison of results, the Chicago Tribune furnishes data by which to judge of the practicability of the two most important schemes for assailing the evils of intemperance—namely, coercive "teetotalism" and high license. These two adjoining states in many respects, particularly in the character of their populations, are very similar. Confronted with the great evil of intemperance, both have employed legislation against it. Kansas, however, took the lead. An amendment to the constitution of the state was carried, which is as rigid, and severe a measure as was ever attempted by the most dogmatic affirmative of prohibition. Its advocates proposed to go to the root of the matter by putting this measure of prohibition into the constitution of the state, so that no party could get it out. It was so sweeping that it came near prohibiting the use of wine in the sacrament, and it was only after a somewhat determined struggle that the courts so construed it as to make an exception in the latter case. In every other form, everything drinkable, containing the slightest degree of spirits, from rum to cider, even in medicines, was barred out. It was made a penal offense to buy it, to sell it, to give it away, to drink it, to manufacture it, or to bring it into the state, except through the medical channels and into the agencies designated by law. The entire police and constabulary, and, in fact, political machinery of the state, was brought into requisition and specially charged to enforce the law. More than this, the governor had the moral help of public sentiment to a larger degree, perhaps, than could be had in almost any other state in the union, for the people of Kansas are largely of New England origin and represent its radical and Puritanic nature in social and sumptuary reforms. The hosts of the enemy arrayed themselves for the struggle also, and now, after a year's contest, what do we see? The governor issues an official proclamation offering a large reward for testimony which shall convict police, constables, sheriffs, justices, and agents who have failed to stop drinking in the cities and towns. What more is this than a confession of failure?

Coercive teetotalism, then, is proved to operate in Kansas very much as it does in the older Puritan state of Massachusetts, where as the Boston Herald says: "Prohibition, so far as it is enforced, simply drives out the use of mild and bulky beverages, and drives the liquor traffic into secret places. The effect is more drunkenness and worse results on account of the deterioration of the quality of the liquors consumed. Therefore, the friends of temperance should vote for license." The reason of the failure is not far to seek. It is the old story that has been told wherever the law has said to the citizens, "You shall not drink anything stronger than water." Law does not make morals nor control habits. Even in Kansas, in spite of an iron-bound constitution, men ask for liquor, buy it, pay for it and drink it; for wherever a demand for an article exists there is sure to be a supply, and drinking goes on in Kansas in the teeth of threats and proclamations, and in spite of searches and fines.

The people of Nebraska, quietly watching for a while the course of events in Kansas, have taken a different course. Seeing little to gain from the Kansas policy, they have adopted the high-license system as a restrictive measure, fixing the licenses in the larger cities at $1000 a year, and in the towns and villages at $500. By this plan, on the one hand, they argued that they would increase their revenues, make the machinery of the law self supporting, and pay all their police and constabulary expenses; and, on the other hand, would close up the low doggeries and keep open only the more orderly and reputable places. Some thousands of liquor-sellers not able to take out high licenses would be remitted back to productive employments and forced to work for a living. The liquor-sellers held meetings of indignation, refused to pay the high license, and made preparations to fight it. But what was the result? All the teetotalers said they should pay it. The vast majority of the other half, the moderate drinkers among the farmers, mechanics, merchants, and professional men, who are taxpayers, seeing that the law was not aimed at them but at disreputable venders, and that the revenues from licenses would lighten the general burden of taxation, also said they should pay the new license. The saloonkeepers who could pay, seeing that almost the whole community was against them, a large proportion being their own customers, yielded, and are now rapidly closing out their licenses. The result is that pretty much all the low dens in Nebraska are closing up, the public revenue will be largely increased, and intemperance will be reduced to the lowest practicable minimum. But some will say there will be secret violations of the law. There can be little danger of that for the reason that the saloonkeepers who pay the large licenses will find it for their own interest to become assistant detectives and help enforce the law to save their own profits. There can be no question that of the schemes yet tried to control intemperance rationally and reduce its evils to the lowest practicable point, the Nebraska scheme of high license is the best. The Kansas teetotalers themselves are beginning to recognize it, and before long will adopt it.

COMPARATIVE PRICES.

A journal of financial and economic science, published in New York, presents some interesting statistics of prices of articles of general consumption in eastern markets before and since resumption of specie payments. The tables comprise the articles in most common use, constituting three-fourths of all the traffic of the country. The prices of the year 1860 are taken as representing the normal standard between commodities and gold. Representing this condition by 100, the statement shows that the average prices on the 1st of November, 1878, were at 8 .40; in 1879, at 98.62; in 1880, at 103.08, and at the present time at 111.02. This, however, does not show the change so strikingly as the fact that the food which could be bought for $93 in gold in 1878 cost $76 in 1879, and $92 in 1881. The advance is 50 per cent. It takes $1 50 to buy this year on the basis of the Public's tables, what could be bought three years ago for $1. In the cost of clothing there is likewise a serious rise, the price advancing from $27 in 1878 to $33 in 1881.

In articles of food the rise of prices has been greater and less regular than in those of any other class. The main advance has been in breadstuffs and pork products. In beef, mutton, tallow, and even in butter and cheese the increase, though considerable, has been much less than in grain and pork. On the whole, imported articles of food have changed comparatively little. Nor has the change been by any means as great as in cotton, print cloths, wool, leather and other articles of clothing. While the increase in the cost of grain since 1878 has been 50 per cent., in meats it is 27 per cent., in dairy products 70 per cent., and in sugar and the remaining articles of food only 15 per cent., the increase in clothing has been 36 per cent.; in the class embracing the metals, coal, oil, hemp and glass, and representing the department of tools and machinery, the increase has been 31 per cent., and in lumber and building materials 30 per cent. The following list of average prices in the years before and after the panic of 1873 is instructive:

1858	101.00	1874	111.00
1857	108.00	1875	97.00
1868	140.00	1876	100.00
1869	116.00	1877	111.00
1870	118.00	1878	81.40
1871	120.00	1879	98.62
1872	122.00	1880	103.08
1873	113.00	1881	111.02

For ten years prior to 1873 prices were considerably above the normal standard, and the maximum figure, 140, was reached in 1868, five years before the panic. A general and progressive rise of prices usually precedes a commercial crisis; and, while we are far enough removal from the abnormal figures of 1868, it is perhaps worth noticing that we are within two per cent. of the average of 1873. In the above figures gold values are used in all cases.

CLASSICAL EDUCATION.

While there is a great deal in classical instruction the fallacy is in supposing it the be-all and end-all of intellectual training. It gives a ready insight into many stores and treasures of literature, science and art; but it is not indispensable, nor always even useful, to a really vigorous and original mind. It may actually cramp a mind of this sort and so prevent it from accomplishing what it would have done had it been left to its native resources. Few, indeed, in any age, or at any time, have been able to assimilate the enormous mass of classical learning which Milton acquired and used. Shakespeare, greatest of the world's masters of thought and expression, had "small Latin and less Greek." A severe course of classical training would probably have killed the imaginative genius of Dickens. A writer tells of a famous Greek professor so learned in the dead languages that he could not write a living one. He was a truly great scholar, but Greek and Hebrew and Sanscrit had so muddled his English that he could not construct six good sentences in his native tongue. Franklin did not need classical training, and many others—men "not only of an age but for all time"—have worked only in their native tongue, and found it ample for all their purposes and strength. Still, classical training is not to be undervalued. Its best results are probably in the help it affords the average man,—and the average man always outnumbers all the rest.

Scoville continues to express the fear that the country will commit "judicial murder" by "sacrificing" his brother-in-law, the assassin; and he believes that if he can "save" his "insane" relation the country will yet be "grateful" to him for it. The fact is that the country views everything that relates to this assassin—except its duty of hanging him—with the most complete and profound indifference. Under no possibility can it care enough about the Guiteau family to be "grateful" to Scoville for anything—much less for his being coerced by his wife to undertake the defense of the damnable monster. Nobody wants to hang an irresponsibly insane man; but Guiteau has convinced everybody that he is not one of that kind, and the country therefore cares nothing about him but to hang him and have the farce, called a trial, ended. An egotistical hunger and thirst for notoriety, coupled with devilish depravity is neither insanity nor excuse for murder. Scoville mistakes. The country is not going to suffer the slightest pang of remorse from hanging Guiteau. It now knows enough of the internal condition of this moral monstrosity to be fully convinced that hanging is the only thing that will possibly do. And it is thoroughly sick of Guiteau, of Scoville, of Mrs. Scoville and the whole family through whom the dreadful calamity of the murder of its chief magistrate, and this prolonged infliction of a farcical trial, have been brought upon it.

The Carson (Nev.) Appeal asserts that not one in a hundred of the pioneers of that state has $500 that he can call his own. The wealthy men of the state to-day are those who went there after 1865. The bonanza mines are exhausted. Those who made the great fortunes have carried off their money to New York to speculate upon or to Paris to spend and enjoy. Nevada is a played-out state. What is left of it consists of volcanic rocks, sage-brush plains, barren mountains, and a lot of corrupt politicians who sell senatorships and other offices to the highest bidders.

The annual cost of school books in the United States is estimated at above $10,000,000. The trade is one of vast proportions.

A CARD.

A FIXED PRINCIPLE IN MANY WELL CONducted business establishments is that all goods which by reason of changes in style, deterioration, damage or other causes become unsalable are sent to auction or sold at private sale at a great reduction, sometimes not realizing half or perhaps a quarter their cost. Among that class of goods most prolific of loss to the dealers by reason of a failure to sell in their season are the numerous and varied styles of so-called Holiday Goods, which at this season of the year adorn and beautify the shop windows and show cases of many places of business. This class of goods remaining unsold after the advent of the new year depreciate most wonderfully in value. Believing that present or immediate losses are preferable to prospective ones, extending over an indefinite period, we are fully determined to act upon this theory with reference to our stock, and would most respectfully solicit intending purchasers to call and examine our goods and prices. They are elegant and varied in design, and must be sold.

FROM ASTORIA.

Necessity of Improvement at the mouth of the Columbia—What Capt. Buchanan Accomplished at the Cut-off—Gossip about the Great Eastern.

(REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.)

ASTORIA, Dec. 28, 1881.

If any sure indication is now needed to convince the world in general and our legislators in congress assembled in particular, that the commerce of the Columbia river is rapidly increasing, and that in a ratio that is perhaps beyond precedent, the fact that owing to a week or ten days' continuance of southwesterly gales rendering the bar at the mouth of the river unnavigable for crossing, twenty vessels loaded and ready for sea are to-day at anchor inside and eighteen, from actual count by the officers of the steamship Eureka, which crossed in from Alaska this afternoon, are standing off outside, ought to convince the most skeptical that such indeed is the case. Not perhaps some will fall back on the stereotyped cry of the inexperienced landsman, "What you want is more powerful bar tugs." To such we would say, If you bar tug had the power of the Great Eastern it would not be safe under similar circumstances to take even an 18-foot draught vessel out or in at the present depth of water at high tide on the bar.

Speaking of the Great Eastern, we have heard from what should be a reliable source, that Ivy O. H. & N. Co., have about concluded negotiations for the purchase of this monster of the deep. The OREGONIAN'S European dispatches informed the public not very long since, that the great elephant had been sold at auction for $150,000. It is said that Mr. Villard's agent has since bought her for $600 00, that she is to have her sails wheels removed and twin propellers placed in her stern in addition to the one already there. That it is the intention of the company to convey immigrants in her to Washington Territory, and that she will return to England with her 15,000 or 20,000 tons of wheat taken on at Tacoma. There is certainly nothing unlikely in the rumor or plan, on the contrary it seems to us most likely that the huge vessel has at last found the place she was intended to fill in the commercial and maritime world. It was reported that Mr. Villard intended to have the dry dock to be constructed at Portland, made large enough so that if necessary, the Great Eastern could be docked and repaired there, but we are compelled to doubt the truth of this last report.

The Astoria chamber of commerce met last evening and determined to strengthen the hands of Oregon's representatives as much as possible, appointed committees to draft memorials to congress bearing on subjects of vital importance to the commercial interests of this northwestern coast, and our own state in particular, and which must be persistently kept before congress until the needed legislation is secured. Of course the much needed improvement of the Columbia bar was not forgotten. Every reflecting person realizes that a permanent improvement of the channel at the mouth of the river is a question involving not only a large amount of money, but also the absolute necessity of securing the very best engineering skill to render it certain that that money shall not be uselessly expended. But why not in the meantime (pending the result of future legislation and a concentration of the wisdom of the United States board of engineers) avail ourselves of that simple plan which really did create a channel and afford much temporary relief. We allude to the dragging done by Capt. Buchanan, under directions from Col. Gillespie. The cut-off channel through which all deep draft vessels are now taken (for the reason, indeed, that they cannot be taken by any other) is the direct result of the dragging performed on that occasion. Certain indications demonstrating that nature was trying to make a channel there, Capt. Buchanan commenced where there were soundings of but 12 feet at low tide. In twenty days, at an expense of only seventy-five dollars a day, (exclusive of his own pay), he succeeded in getting a depth of 21 feet at the same stage. The work was then discontinued, it was said for want of funds, the appropriation being expended. If an OREGONIAN reporter will interview Capt. Buchanan, we think that gentleman will inform us that if he could have continued the work that channel might have been deepened to 27 or 30 feet. Soundings show that to-day it carries the same depth as when Capt. B. quit. There has been no filling up and there is no good reason why the depth should not be still further increased, in the same economical manner, the first favorable opportunity that presents itself, and thus greatly facilitate the ingress and egress of vessels into the Columbia river.

[The channel at the "cut off" is quite as deep as the channel of the Columbia river bar, and there is no necessity for further scraping.—ED. OREGONIAN.]

Miss Priscilla S. Riches, daughter of Charles Riches of Turner, died at that place on the 24th inst., aged 35 years.

The whole number of students in the state university last term was 205. Of those 53 were in the preparatory department.

Diphtheria is on a prevalent in Salem with fatal results. There are also a number of cases in Eugene City, but of a mild type.

Washington Territory.

Dr. Tajmon, of the Skagit, is doing a good work for Puget Sound in San Francisco by interesting capitalists in starting a wood paper factory on the Sound, for which purpose he is having sufficient cottonwood shipped from the Skagit to make the necessary test.

An old man named W. L. Brown was found dead in his cabin at Rent on on Christmas day. He was a Swede and an old resident, having lived on the Sound since 1852. He was about 72 years old and nothing is known of his relatives. He was possessed of considerable property at the time of his death, but died and died alone in his cabin.

The prospects of the iron interests at Irondale are again quite encouraging. The enterprise has been unfortunate in two or three instances, caused by inexperienced labor; but the richness of the ore and easy working of the quarries cannot be questioned. It is said that the mine will be handed over to it is proposed to increase the capital stock to $500,000, to be taken mostly by San Francisco capitalists.

J. W. Moore, the discoverer of anthracite coal near Snoqualmie falls, reached Seattle last week, with a fine lot of fish, consisting of sturgeon and salmon, which he obtained near the coal fields. He reports five feet of snow in the mountains, with a good prospect for several feet more before the close of winter. He has two men at work now, tunneling in on one of the discovery veins, within five miles of the pass, but says they cannot make much headway before spring, on account of the deep and constantly falling snow, their cabin being so far away from the mine.

The Refunding Measures.

A Democratic paper says: No better commentary upon the invention of that clamorous opposition which the banking classes of the country, and their daily press organs, made to the refunding law of the last congress, by means of which a feeble president was afforded into attempting his veto, were possible than this proposition of the former secretary of the treasury of the same president within the same year, to refund $200,000,000 of the public debt by de ad at per cent.

The Cincinnati Commercial punctures this criticism thus:

You make the enormous mistake of failing to note that Sherman's bill is simply a refunding bill. The denunciatory measure was carefully contrived to perplex, harass and embarrass the national banks. It was a declaration of war upon the national banks under a false pretense of refunding. The democratic congressional mind did not seem capable of considering a financial measure without the element of force. Their warlike scheme to disturb our financial system to the name of refunding, was properly vetoed, for it was needlessome, and, if not brought out in malice, a miracle of ignorance. Sherman's bill is plain business.

Jay Cooke, it is said, is as young, active and energetic as he was a dozen years ago, and he has retained the fabric of his shattered fortune.

THE DALLES, Dec. 25, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The accounts of the dastardly trial are so exasperating that I cannot refrain from expressing my feelings by protest, as that seems to me the only way of opening the eyes of the people at Washington to the enormity of the assassin's offense. Please publish the enclosed lines, and oblige, yours truly, S.

WHY NOT ENCOURAGE THE PLAY?

Suggested by reading Burdett's words that he could "see nothing to laugh about in the trial of Guiteau."

Why do you worry and fret and get your soul
With rage at the trial to-day?
'Tis nothing of moment, a trivial affair,
Then why not encourage the play?

He slaughtered our president, it is quite true,
And millions are in mourning to-day
Though their grief seemeth great, of course it's a farce,
And why not encourage the play?

Will success be gained another may come,
And take our chief ruler away:
He will surely be crazy, at least it's taken,
Then why not encourage the play.

The way Guiteau Reasoned it Out.

(New York Mail and Express.)

Guiteau reasoned but like one in this wise: 1. The stalwarts hate the president and would be glad to have him "removed." 2. Were he removed Arthur would become president and would immediately surround himself with the stalwart head-men. 3. The "removal" of the president would require Conkling. 4. If I "remove" the president and Arthur the stalwarts in power, which is exactly what they wish done, they will prevent my punishment and reward my act, and I shall instantly become famous. The steps of this logic are made clear as day light by the test money, and absolutely destroy the theory of insanity and save the claim of imagination. Guiteau reasoned out his case like other ill-starred and wilful criminals, and acted upon the conclusion. The event proved but his premises were all wrong, and that he had totally miscalculated the effects of his diabolical deed. The pleas of insanity and inspiration are afterthoughts which do not deserve serious consideration. If every body who makes a mistake in facts and reasoning is to be adjudged insane, it will be necessary to convert three-quarters of the country into a lunatic asylum.

FRIDAY MORNING, DEC. 30, 1881.

PRESIDENTIAL PROSPECTS.

Entertaining Speculations for the Contest of 1884.

New York, says "Gath," has but one candidate—and nobody understands whether he is a candidate or not—Mr. Tilden. From the best I can glean, I should think that he thought he was a candidate, but that his sister thought that he ought not to be. By this I mean that the old man is so weak that the people and his family perceive it, while he does not. In sober earnest, nothing much is to be expected from Mr. Tilden in the hereafter. His great hold on the country was as a reformer—a sweeper-out of abuses. Had he been left severely alone, that impression would have elected him; but a lot of cheap rognes, who are always hanging on to great men as if they were useful, undertook to do his work, and overdid it, and destroyed the impression of a reformer. It looks a little as if the tariff question now being broached, was Mr. Tilden's new point. He has never been, however, enough of a free-trader to lead that question. The men surrounding him are iron-makers. Hewitt and Cooper and Whitney are all, one way or another, related to the manufacturing interest.

I think there is no doubt that Senator Thurman, of Ohio, holds the highest rank in the democratic party, or, I may say, the opposition to the republican party. Of the opposition to the republican party about two-thirds are democrats. The other third republicans at Washington are very much afraid that the democrats are going to nominate next time a disgruntled republican. Even Blaine is not outside of that opportunity. If the democrats make up their minds to nominate Blaine they could unquestionably carry the country, because he would detach that whole element of the republican party which has never been quite contented since 1872. Indeed, Blaine at the time looked very gravely at the republican split, if he did not meditate going into it. The Miss Nancies who operated it, having no other platform of consequence than to discriminate sentimentally against, hate to exciting against Blaine as a man who did not belong to what they called "the better element of the republican party"—an assumption of itself disgusting. The man who calls himself of "the better element of the republican party" is a good deal meaner than the Pharisee who thanked God in his prayer that he was not like other men. Blaine is the only man in the United States who is formidable to the machine everywhere. He is formidable in the party and formidable outside of it.

At present there seems slight probability of the election of a straight democrat two years hence. Thurman has more respect than any leader in the party, but there is a certain prematurity of age about him, and those indignant qualities which once seemed to indicate him to the people are soothed. He spends quite as much time admiring the republican leaders as he does constructing a future out of democratic material. Although Mr. Pendleton seems to be fastening attention upon himself, I am unable to see that he has produced any impression in this quarter of the world. I do not see how, except under very remarkable circumstances, he could carry the state of New York.

The main hold of the democrats for the next presidency is the hope of a schism among the republicans. If President Arthur possesses any knowledge of human nature and of the country, and does not excite himself on the subject of a second term, he can steadily decrease the democratic prospects of a straight-out success. There is a little idea about in New York that he is in favor of running Mr. Robertson for governor next time. I should that would be eminently wise, and it would mold the party in that state into one body, and probably make it unanimous for Arthur's re-election. The trouble in the republican party is twofold. First, the dominion of revengeful bosses; and second, the want of new moral purposes in the party. The spirit of Cromwell has always animated the republican party—a passion for materia, and moral warfare and dominion. The democracy is weak because it makes no pretensions on that head. Thousands of republicans are dissatisfied with the moral emptiness of their party; but when they look over to the other side they see no reason to desert.

Judge Thurman comes the nearest of any democratic leader to republican estimation, to promising the kind of administration which would purge the public service of unworthiness. Yet there is slight probability of Thurman being nominated, and I do not see a single man named by the democracy who is probable to get as many votes as General Hancock. Hancock did the best he could the last time. The simple fact is that the whole country is looking into the republican party and its contentions and complications for the theatre of action, and the democracy is a side show. It is like going into a circus where the big ring riding is to be done and being stopped near the entrance by a smaller tent in which is the bearded lady. If these remarks need be taken by anybody, so much the better.

There are two conspicuous persons on the stage of events at present—the president of the United States and Mr. Blaine. Can anything be made of Mr. Blaine for the presidential campaign? That is the great question. He wants the presidency, and has a wondrous following. Suppose he should run for the presidency independently! At the present moment his friends will laugh at this suggestion, yet when you have a man so clearly indicated as a great popular leader, who is still kept out of power by the machinery of his party, you have an overpresent temptation to make something of him. Possibly in the turn of events Mr. Blaine's influence might go for some democrat. President Arthur, however, has it in his power to keep Blaine in solution by appeasing the element which would like to precipitate Blaine. The southern element will unanimously favor the old party lines. Some republicans fear that they will bring with them a good many notions not heretofore respectable in the republican party.

Blaine, with his extraordinary faculty for politics and diplomacy, may manage to extricate himself in some way as a presidential candidate; and, if he can do it, he is going to give the regular party a tougher turn than they got in the campaign of 1872. He is, at any rate, stronger with the people than he has ever had. His errors of commission have fully atoned for in his more recent services. The fact that it takes the whole party organization for him to defeat him is now making him a great favorite of the general masses. Being about to retire from politics, he almost ceases to be a republican, and becomes the intellectual admiration of the whole crowd. Of course no man can cross from one party to the other without reasons and keep respect. Yet questions may arise within two years which could give Blaine the opportunity to make an issue with the administration, and the moment he did so he would become an object of world-wide political consideration. I would not be surprised to see Blaine go through the south, and come out of it a political idol. His competitors may yet find that they have bullied and slaughtered him on repeated occasions only to reserve for him the honor of becoming the first president in the hearts of the people of both sections since the conclusion of the civil war.

There are two or three points which make Blaine dangerous to democratic aspirants for the presidency. In the first place, his Irish stock. The democratic party has the Irish race for its keel. Blaine is the most conspicuous man now on the stage of events, he displays the Irish temperament, wit, sparkle, and audacity. In the next place, he is the representative politician of the manufacturing-laboring element. His attachment to the tariff is exactly and unreserved. His boldness in it as the basis of the American nation, the great cause of immigration, his preservative principle of the democracy. In the third place, while he once waved the "bloody shirt," almost everybody knows that at the bottom he has not a particle of section in his nature, and is more southern than northern in his ways and modes. Henry Clay, notwithstanding his great repute, was probably a more awkward and egotistical specimen of a popular politician than Blaine. Next, the conversance of Blaine with every portion of the country is matchless. You can not name any town, however small, but he knows one or more persons in it. As an orator, in the present mode of having something to say, as well as manner of saying it, he probably stands at the head of Americans. In office he was Blaine the politician; out of office he is Blaine of the people, and we may remark to President Arthur, "Don't you forget it."

THE NEW MEMBER.

He Calls on the President, but don't See him.

[From the National Republican.]

A new member of congress on his first visit to the White House is an oft'ring spectacle. He approaches with an air that is terrible to behold. He is a sovereign and is about to visit a vassal, and the more rural the district he represents the more he is impressed with this idea. One such a specimen came to the White House on Wednesday. His hat had coal, which had evidently just come out of a country store, were drenched with rain, but in spite of these adverse circumstances his dignity was of the starchiest kind. Walking into the corridor with a lofty air he attempted to go up stairs, when one of the doorkeepers interposed. Bowing upon this official with a haughty air, he said sternly: "I wish to see the president." He was told that it was after the time for the president to receive callers, but he could send up his name if he wished. Producing his card he stood in gloomy silence awaiting the answer. Presently the messenger returned with the word that the president could not see him. The representative of the sovereign people wore a look of blank astonishment, and then his dignity began to ooze out from his fingers' ends wherever it could get an outlet, and he went out of the house a meeker and a wiser man.

THURSDAY, Dec. 29.

The local wheat market has been dull and weak during the week under review, and transactions have been so small as not to be worthy of mention. The nominal quotation throughout the week has been $1 55 per cental. The Liverpool market has been looking up a little during the past few days, and the local market here is, of course, strengthened in proportion to the better feeling on the other side. A good lot of wheat would bring $1 57½ per cental to-day.

We learn that the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company are making arrangements to move grain down the Columbia river from the Walla Walla country at a much heavier rate than during the past month. This is occasioned by the anxiety of shippers.

The American ship Indiana, wooden, was chartered yesterday to load wheat for Europe; terms reserved. Something like half a dozen vessels will be on the market within the next ten days.

The English Markets.

The Mark Lane Express of Saturday last—printed two days ahead of usual time on account of the Christmas holidays says: All autumn sown crops are very healthy. The farmers wheats has come to hand in very bad order the past few weeks thus increasing the difficulty of sale. The demand for breadstuffs is small and trade is restricted. Native grades are unchanged. There is no fresh feature in foreign breadstuffs. Low grades of Indian and Russian wheat are mostly cheaper. American grain in some provincial exchanges is cheaper than last week. Trade everywhere is of a quiet character. The off coast trade closed quiet but tolerably steady. Red winter touched 54s during the week. The best bid yesterday was 53s 6d. California and New Zealand wheat received little attention. There now are eight cargoes on sale, seven having been withdrawn.

Portland Produce Market.

Owing to the low price of wheat, and large stocks on hand, flour is rather dull. Oats continue firm for shipping. Notwithstanding large receipts at San Francisco, the undertone of the market is very firm. Hay has steady sale, but is without special activity. Mill feed is in good demand. Shorts are very scarce—in fact the supply is short. Hams, bacon and shoulders are weak owing to a large amount being put up by local packers. Receipts of lard during the past two weeks have been very large and the market is very weak. Sales are only made at concessions. The demand for dried apples is rather lighter than during the past few weeks. The San Francisco market is very stagnant. Shippers are holding off, afraid to touch at prices demanded. The amount of dried plums on the markets is immense. Commission men are unable to do anything with them. Hops are dull. There is no change in hides. Choice fresh roll dairy butter is extremely scarce. Receipts of inferior lots have been very large during the week and sales are proportionately slow. Onions are wanted for home consumption only. Under heavy receipts, eggs have declined ten cents per dozen since our last weekly review, enabling shippers to clean up all old stocks. Cheese is firm and liable to advance at any time. Choice red apples well packed are in good demand. Shippers, if they want their fruit to bring a good price, should pack tier on tier and the boxes filled. Loose apples don't find ready sale. There is very little demand for pears. There is no demand for timothy seed. Chickens are steady and in good demand. Large receipts always have a tendency to weaken the market and quotations are changing every day. Choice fat geese are selling readily at quotations. The demand will cease with the close of the holiday season. Columbia river salt salmon is scarce. Potatoes are weaker owing to unfavorable advices from San Francisco. The Columbia and Oregon arrived there yesterday with eleven thousand sacks which will, no doubt, have a depressing influence on the market. Shingles are in good demand considering the season. There is but little doing in wool. No stocks of any importance are held here.

CELEBRATED

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt, under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

CLOAKS

SUITS.

BASED ON FACTS.

MAIL AND WELLS, FARGO & CO. DEPARTMENT.

Every dress sent out by me is an advertisement to all others. The actual profit on a single dress would not pay me, if I did not expect and receive other orders for Dresses and Dolmans. Hence I am careful in every particular to give perfect satisfaction. My $15 Dress is no doubt the best value in the world, as I have worked for the leading fashion Houses in America, and been called to the great cities of France, of my CLOAKS I need not say anything, as I shall make it the aim of my specialties in the spring, after enlarging my store. Address your orders or send goods you want made up to R. B. LITT, Suit Hotel, P. O. Box 307, Portland, Or., giving size of bust, Sleeve, skirt and waist, and whether Dress, Basque or Polonaise.
